

Patent Litigation Practice is Three-Time Winner at 2018 LMG Life Sciences Awards

September 2018

On Wednesday, September 12th, Williams & Connolly was honored with three awards at the 2018 LMG Life Sciences Awards Dinner in New York City. Williams & Connolly was recognized as Litigation Firm of the Year. The firm also received the Hatch-Waxman Impact Case of the Year award for its work on Eli Lilly & Co. v. Dr. Reddy's Laboratories. In addition, partner Thomas Fletcher was named a U.S. Rising Star in Intellectual Property. The awards, which are selected based on a survey of peers and leading companies in the life sciences industry, “recognize and honor the leading attorneys, firms and in-house counsel teams, which have played a significant role in the life sciences industry over the past year.”

In 2017, partner and Co-Chair of the firm’s Products Liability, Torts, and Medicine practice group, Heidi Hubbard, was awarded Product Liability Attorney of the Year. In addition, Senior Counsel, Richard Cooper, was inducted into the LMG Life Sciences Hall of Fame. He was recognized for his contributions to the life sciences field and for his work representing some of the largest companies in the country. Only a limited number of lawyers are inducted each year and, according to the publication, Richard joins “a select group of legends in the Life Sciences industry.”

In 2016, the firm received awards for Hatch-Waxman Impact Case of the Year and Patent Impact Case of the Year.

LMG Life Sciences is a part of Euromoney Institutional Investor PLC, the publisher of Benchmark: Litigation, Managing Intellectual Property, and International Financial Law Review (IFLR).
